709. India-French, Pondicherry, Copper Cache, 1.55 g g, a highly stylized fleur-di-lis on the obverse; a bird (which could most probably be a peacock) facing the right on the reverse. It is proposed by some scholars that the bird could either be a peacock and in that sense be a continuation of the motifs of the Nayakas done by the French for numismatic continuity or else the bird could be the earliest rendition of the rooster which was employed by the French on their coins later. In either of the circumstances the coin is most definitely an excellent addition for collectors of India-French coinage. (Unlisted in relevant Catalogs). Very Fine, Rare.
Estimate : ₹. 5,000-6,000

710

710. India-French, Nakkapattanam, Copper Cache, a similar issue with a dotted rosette is said to have been struck by the Dutch when they occupied Nagapattanam, however in the current specimen the dotted rosette is replaced by a pair of crescents which some scholars are proposing to be a rendition of the breasts of a female and hence are proposing this to be a probable French issue meant to be used for trading with the colonies under the Dutch occupation. Obverse features a crude rendition of Kali and reverse has legends in Tamil. (Unlisted in relevant Catalogs). Very Fine, Rare.
Estimate : ₹. 3,000-3,500

719. India-Dutch, Pondicherry, Copper Cash, with nagari 'Ve' on the obverse in the crescent, similar to the one seen on Gold Fanams attributed to being issues of Venkoji of the Tanjore Maratha lineage. It could also be an issue struck by the Dutch for use in territories controlled by the Marathas. This could be of special interest to Dutch as well as Maratha collectors.
